The Rev. Howard Gray conducted the services and the Burns Sisters sang two hymns.

Palbearers for the burial in the Ferncliff Cemetery in Springfield were Donald Walton, Ellsworth Burns, Robert and Harold Baker, Macie Cordell, and Myron E. Tyree.

The News In Brief

CLEVELAND (AP) — Lucie Arnaz was driving along the Ohio Turnpike Monday at 3:45 p.m. and she wanted to see herself on a previously taped Dinah Shore show that was aired at 4 p.m.

The famous comedienne decided to get off at the highway and find a television screen. After looking in vain for a motel she and Bob Noll, the publicist for Kenley Players, spotted a television antenna on top of a farmhouse on Ohio 14.

When someone came to the door she said, "Hi, I'm Lucie Arnaz and I'd like to watch myself on television. The stunned family — they were seven people in the house — obligingly turned off "Star Trek" and watched Miss Arnaz watch herself with Dinah.

Miss Arnaz is appearing as Daisy Mae in the Kenley Players production of "Li'l Abner" which opens here tonight.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A blast from an explosive device of undetermined nature damaged the exterior of a section of the trans-Alaska pipeline, but the flow of oil was not affected, authorities said.

State Police Lt. George Pollitt said the blast, which damaged insulation around the outside of the line, occurred about 9 p.m. Monday about 17 miles north of Fairbanks. In that area the pipeline runs about one mile north of a cafe and five miles off a state highway.

KENT, Ohio (AP) — The ball in the Kent State University gym controversy now goes into the court of the school's Board of Trustees which today has the option of sitting pat or knocking the ball back into play.

When the trustees convene at 5 p.m. today, they will know that the referee — Portage County Common Pleas Court Judge Joseph Kainrad — has ruled they have broken no rules so far in wanting the $6 million gym constructed near the site of the 1970 Kent State shootings.

Nonetheless, the trustees' opponents, the May 4th Coalition, has threatened to defy the judge's ruling by reoccupying the construction site if the trustees decide to proceed with the gym.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is immediately halting sales of phenformin, which is often prescribed for mild cases of diabetes, saying the drug is so dangerous that hundreds of users could die if it remains on the market for another year.

In an unprecedented action, HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. ordered a total ban on sales of phenformin, a drug he said is being used by 360,000 Americans.

Housing subsidy could bring less money

Link welfare cuts, housing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sources say HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. is drafting a plan that would reduce welfare payments to tenants of federally subsidized housing, despite his public assurance this would not be considered for President Carter's welfare reform package.

A high government official told The Associated Press on Monday that the idea is one of three options the HEW secretary will send Carter this week for possible inclusion in the welfare reform package to be unveiled Aug. 4.

A lobbyist familiar with the subject also said two high administration officials had confirmed Califano's intentions.

The disclosure on July 14 that Califano was considering the welfare reduction for subsidized housing residents resulted in a storm of protest from home builders, civil rights groups, mayors, governors, labor groups and officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Califano was considering the alternative in an effort to meet cost limitations set by Carter for welfare reform and to remedy an inequity he saw.

But last Wednesday, Califano met with a group of mayors, governors and county officials who were at his office protesting that move and other parts of the welfare reform package. Califano said at the meeting and at a subsequent news conference he had given up the idea of counting the housing subsidies toward welfare payments.

He said the issue "will not be part of the welfare reform proposal," but would be discussed for possible inclusion in the fiscal 1979 budget.

Eileen Shanahan, assistant secretary of Health, Education and Welfare for public affairs, said Monday night that "some very complicated stuff involving housing and welfare is under consideration. The total doorslam on this last Wednesday may not have been accurate. The impression left then was incorrect."

She refused to provide details of the proposal because "it is still being discussed and nothing has been finally decided."

A government source said HEW's three options were: a percentage reduction of welfare payments to residents of subsidized housing; application of a so-called "fiscal dividend" toward welfare rather than toward rent; or a combination of those options.

The first option is similar to the earlier proposal which raised a storm. It would give a family living in subsidized housing a smaller welfare check than recipients in private housing.

HEW's original proposal would have reduced cash welfare payments by $900 million. The current option was said to call for a reduction in total welfare payments of between $400 million and $900 million.

This would help Califano meet Carter's order that the new system not cost any more than the old one. Califano also has said it is unfair for some welfare recipients to receive the benefit of housing subsidies while others do not.

Opponents argue that the reductions in tenants' welfare checks might be so large that they would be forced to move from subsidized housing to cheap, slum housing in order to have enough cash to live on.

Claim African cease-fire holds

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt says a cease-fire has taken hold on its embattled western frontier, and a military spokesman has denied a Libyan ambassador's claim that his countrymen were still battling Egyptian invaders.

Algerian and Palestinian mediators, meanwhile, continued their efforts to resolve the Egyptian-Libyan conflict, a long-standing dispute between neighbors that broke out into major border clashes one week ago.

In Rome, the Libyan ambassador to Italy, Kadri el Atrash, told a news conference that fighting between Libyan troops and Egyptian paratroopers continued Monday at Al Kufra oasis, almost 100 miles inside Libya and 500 miles south of the Mediterranean.

Atrash also said Libyan forces had routed Egyptian paratroopers from Al Jaghub oasis, 20 miles inside Libya and 100 miles south of the sea, capturing some and sending others fleeing into the desert.

An Egyptian military spokesman here denied the Libyan's claim and said a cease-fire ordered by President Anwar Sadat on Sunday night was being observed.

"No military operations took place inside Libyan territory or on the Egyptian-Libyan border after the cease-fire went into effect at 9 p.m. Sunday," he said. "Our forces are strictly observing the cease-fire order."

Reporters are barred from the border area, and no independent check on the conflicting reports was possible.

The Palestine Liberation Organization announced here Monday that PLO leader Yasir Arafat's mediation mission, shuttling between Cairo and the Libyan capital of Tripoli, had produced a three-point ceasefire agreement between Egypt and Libya. Details were not given.

Algerian President Houari Boumedienne, also trying to mediate the dispute, flew to Tripoli on Monday after talks in Cairo with Sadat.

In Moscow, the Soviet Committee of Solidarity with Countries of Asia and Africa appealed to Egypt "to halt immediately its armed actions on the Egyptian-Libyan border."

In a statement carried by the Soviet news agency Tass and clearly issued with official approval, the committee said the fighting "played into the hands of imperialism, Zionism and their ally, Arab reaction."

Col. Moammar Khadafy, the radical Libyan leader, says Egyptian concessions to Israel show that Sadat is a traitor to the Arab cause.

In Cairo, the editor of the government-controlled newspaper Al Akhbar said Khadafy must be removed from power.

"We don't want anything from this madman except to stop plotting, close sabotage centers and end his attempts to sow discord among Arab countries confronting Israel," Mousa Sabry said. "That is why I say and repeat that this madman must go if any solution is to be found."

Today, the fair's tempo should increase with the beginning of the Junior Fair livestock shows. Also, there will be another 4-H fashion revue scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the activities tent while at the same time the grandstand racing card features 10 dashes.

Pension cuts

No worker's current or future pension would be increased or decreased by these changes.

"These are really accounting and bookkeeping arrangements that have little direct effect on spending," said one source.

Shifting current retirement costs out of the defense budget is the simplest of the possible changes.

Those who favor the change say paying retirement checks for former military personnel is not related to maintaining national security and should not be paid from the defense budget. Pension costs have eaten up a larger and larger chunk of the Pentagon budget, rising to 8.2 per cent in 1978 from only 1.3 per cent in 1962.

Organizations of retired military personnel are against any change.

"Military retirement is unique. We consider it a relevant part of the career package," said Col. George Hennricks of the Retired Officers Association.

A Congressional Budget Office report said such groups "may oppose transferring the ... appropriation from defense to income security because the switch makes military retirement appear to some as a form of welfare to which a social stigma may seem to be attached."

Stocks dip at opening

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices headed lower again today in the aftermath of Monday's broad decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell more than 2 points in early trading.

Losers took a 3-2 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted discouragement over the market's weak showing Monday, when last week's gradual rally collapsed.

Today's early prices included Allied Chemical, off 1/2 at 49 1/4; Weyerhaeuser, down 1/8 at 32; and International Telephone & Telegraph, 1/8 lower at 35 3/4.

Polaroid, which raised its quarterly dividend from 12 1/2 to 20 cents a share, picked up 3/8 to 30 3/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 9.18 to 914.24.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 2-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume slowed to 20.43 million shares from 23.11 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost .42 to 55.29.

Too much wheat plagues farmers

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Too much dry weather in the winter and too much rain in the spring brought predictions of doom for the winter wheat crop. But the harvest is almost complete in Kansas now — and the problem is too much wheat.

Elevators are full, prices are low and the wheat carryover nationally from previous years is estimated at more than 1 billion bushels.

The State Crop and Livestock Reporting Service earlier this month estimated Kansas wheat production at 381.3 million bushels, which would rank it close to the 1973 record harvest of 384.8 million bushels.

The wheat in surplus stocks and this year's production are said to be enough to furnish the United States with all the wheat it needs for five years even if no more wheat is grown.

U.S. wheat production this year has been estimated by the Agriculture Department at more than 2.04 billion bushels, five per cent less the 1976 record of about 2.15 billion bushels.

As of June 1, the nation's wheat reserve was more than 1.1 billion bushels, the most in 14 years.

Firefighters ignore court injunction

UNIVERSITY CITY, Mo. (AP) — Police equipped with riot gear are accompanying firemen from surrounding communities as they answer calls in this St. Louis suburb, where 43 striking firemen say they will ignore a court order to return to work.

St. Louis County police, ordered to protect the firemen as County Supervisor Gene McNary declared a state of emergency in University City, rode with trucks from five neighboring fire districts which responded to a small house fire Monday night. No one was home at the time of the blaze and damage was described as light.

Firefighters from other departments, which have mutual aid pacts with University City, said they were threatened by the local firemen Sunday when they attempted to cross picket lines set up around a burning plastic bottle factory.

The building was destroyed as the outside firemen refused to cross the lines. There were no injuries.

A St. Louis County court on Monday ordered the firefighters to end the strike, which began Friday, and halt interference with other fire departments.

But Richard T. Walker, the president of Local 398 of the International Association of Fire Fighters, said the order would be ignored.

"Justice prevails over legality," he said. "We think we're in the right in what we're doing."

University City firemen held a public meeting Monday night to explain their position. But they took a different kind of heat from the 150 persons who showed up, most of whom were angry over the strike.

A retired St. Louis fireman, who declined to give his name, accused the firefighters of betraying an oath of office. As for the factory, he said, "I'm glad it wasn't my business. I would have shot you guys."

The firemen went on strike after the city refused to grant a partial disability pension to a fireman injured in a crash involving a fire truck and a bus. The firefighter never recovered to the extent that he could return to line duty and was offered a dispatcher's job at a loss of pay, or an inspector's job at a higher rate. The fire union refused the offer.

Opinion And Comment

A grid to avert blackout

Europeans note, perhaps with a touch of smugness, that their part of the world is all but invulnerable to such a power failure as swept New York City into darkness. Their confidence is based on the fact that Europe is covered by an interlocked power grid. It could fail, but the likelihood is minimal.

This lends particular significance to the administration's Cabinet-level inquiry into the feasibility of establishing a national grid system. Other methods of minimizing the impact of a power failure in a populous area also are being studied, with recommendations expected soon.

In addition to the power grid idea, attention also will be focused on ways of promptly shutting down parts of a system to stave off the domino effect that plagued New York. The Federal Power Commission, which has been investigating the New York disaster, is being asked to look into that. President Carter has asked, too, for a study of ways of quickly alerting citizens when a power failure might be imminent, and asking for voluntary cutbacks in use of electricity.

One other thing is being considered. Secretary of Defense Harold Brown has been asked to determine how best to use the National Guard to curb looting and arson in an emergency of this kind.

That is sensible. It should be kept in mind, however, that better management of power through a comprehensive grid system would greatly reduce the chances of major power failures and avert need for troops to keep order.

A WORD EDGEWISE...By John P. Roche

A shameful episode for the press

After reading Peter Braestrup's "Big Story: How the American Press and Television Interpreted the Crisis of Tet 1968 in Vietnam and Washington" (New York, Freedom House), I feel like the family of the Californian accidentally lynched in 1854. What do you say when the vigilantes come by, take off their hats, and say, "Sorry about that, We just got the wrong man — nothing personal"? I also feel spiritually drained. Braestrup's meticulously accurate study of how the American media handled the Jan., 1968 Tet offensive, forced me to relive three of the worst months of my life, Jan.-March, 1968. There is a good psychic sense in the Irish proverb, "Do not discuss rope in the house of the hanged."

Jan., 1968, was a horrendous month for the President of the United States. On the 20th the North Vietnamese besieged Khe Sanh, a major blocking post held by U.S. Marines and ARVN Rangers in Quang Tri province just south of the Demilitarized Zone. The garrison was vastly outnumbered and people in the government and out began meditating on the possibility of an American Dien Bien Phu.

Almost simultaneously the North Koreans seized the intelligence ship "Pueblo" on the high seas and commando raiders almost reached the "Blue House" (the South Korean White House), prepared to blow it sky high. Did this indicate the Asian Communists were opening a second front? Or was it just a bluff to obtain the withdrawal of crack ROK divisions from Vietnam? Were the Soviets in the act?

President Johnson and his aides were meditating on these matters when seemingly the roof fell in. In the early morning hours of Tues., Jan. 30, in Saigon (early afternoon in Washington), the Vietcong hit various locations in the capital city and full-scale attacks were launched on the other major cities of South Vietnam. Hanoi had recommended, and Saigon accepted (despite American military warnings), a week's truce to celebrate the Tet holiday, so half the South Vietnamese Army was on leave when General Giap struck. While initially the assaults on Danang and Hue were the most substantial, interest world-wide focused on the battle for the American Embassy.

From the coverage you might have thought a whole North Vietnamese division was emplaced around the Chancery, and early reports indicated the VC had penetrated the building and held three floors. Curiously this (false) news seemed to enjoy leading elements of the Washington press corps — it just proved that bum L.B.J. was lying again when he talked of improved security. This attitude led even the tight-lipped Dean Rusk to ask some journalists which side they were on.

Actually a suicide squad of about 20 VC sappers hit the Embassy raised some hell, never penetrated the fortress-like building, and got killed. But it was a media event. I came close to committing homicide when I invited a leading Washington newsmen who was trumpeting the VC accomplishment at the Embassy. "Look," I said, "I'll put you on the phone to Arch Calhoun (the Political Officer) in his Embassy office, which you and your pals have the VC occupying." He told me it was the kind of set-up that we could easily rig — how would he know whether Calhoun was actually in his office?

Enough therapy, Roche — moreover it's no fun to say, "I told you so," when you cannot resurrect the dead. Suffice it that Braestrup's modant microanalysis fully justifies Dean Rusk's Query. The American media virtually single-handedly turned a great victory for American and South Vietnamese troops into a demoralizing defeat. Neither Rusk nor I believe in the Soviet notion of "objective guilt" — we never wanted the journalists jailed as accomplices of Hanoi; in subjective terms that was nonsense. But there is a difference between punishment and exposure of incompetence, bias, or both.

Thus, as Braestrup himself a participant overwhelmingly demonstrates, the American press — with a few outstanding exceptions — could not have done a better job of undermining the American people's commitment to the defense of the South Vietnamese had they been on Hanoi's payroll. For example, I got early information about the brutal North Vietnamese massacres at Hue which, unlike My Lai, were not spontaneous outbursts of brutality, but thoroughly researched and planned. They came with lists, broke down doors, systematically seized teachers, agronomists, civil servants and other civilians, and disposed of them KGB-style.

We found the mass graves and tried to stimulate press coverage and pictures. Except for USIS photos, which by law could not be distributed in the U.S., the execution pits went unphotographed for too long. After all, the dead were Vietnamese not American. This Pavlovian ethnocentrism, as Braestrup shows, dominated the coverage of the whole Tet offensive. It was a shameful episode in the annals of the American media.

Amanda Blake receives honor

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP) — Gun-fighters and horseback riders traveled the streets of Dodge City again, but this time they mingled among the automobiles and tourists to welcome a "local" celebrity — Miss Kitty.

Amanda Blake, who played the legendary saloon owner of the long-running "Gunsmoke" television series, returned to Boot Hill on Monday via a Wells Fargo stage coach, accompanied by escorts on horseback.

Public could decide state's bottle bill

By MIKE LAFFERTY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Legislation designed to curb roadside litter by controlling beverage containers has withered annually in the Ohio General Assembly. But a move is afoot by pro bottle-bill forces to bypass the legislators and take the case directly to the public.

Bottle bill proponents say they will begin collecting signatures for petitions as early as August to force the General Assembly to consider requiring deposits on all soft drink and beer containers (cans included) and to ban pull-top cans.

The proposal would be identical to House Bill 33, this year's bottle bill, which has been languishing in the House Energy and Environment Committee. It is the only one of several anti-litter bills which has been printed, usually a sign that some legislative committee plans to at least discuss it.

Specifically, HB 33 and the proposed petition would:

- Require a 10-cent deposit on all soft drink and beverage containers.
- Require a 5-cent deposit on all containers of standard design which could be reused by any bottler for any beverage, and

—Ban pull-top cans.
Rep. Virginia Aveni, D-17 Lyndhurst, the bill's main sponsor, said the proposal is intended to encourage recycling and to reduce the money and effort local governments put into roadside cleanups.

Prime mover of the petition effort is the Ohio Alliance for Returnables, an organization of about 300 persons and environmental organizations. David Sonner, spokesman for the group, said the alliance will canvas county fairs in late summer to collect the necessary 150,000 signatures.

The petition would force the General Assembly to take action on the proposal in early 1978, or stand aside and allow voters to decide the issue.

Sonner expects the legislators will take no action. So, he is drawing up plans to collect an additional 150,000 signatures to place the proposal before voters in November 1978.

The alliance has received support from conservation groups and garden clubs, and he expects help from rural residents. In fact, the 67,000 member Ohio Farm Bureau Federation is polling county farm bureaus to see if they'll help circulate petitions.

Ballet lessons good for boys

DEAR READERS: A woman signed BUDDY'S MOTHER wrote to say that her 10-year-old son who had taken ice skating lessons for two years had asked to take ballet lessons.

She said that she and her husband feared that if they let him take up ballet he might turn into a homosexual.

I told her that it took a great deal of manly discipline for a boy to excel at ballet, and to go ahead and give the boy ballet lessons.

The reader feedback was interesting.

Some samples:

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet BUDDY'S MOTHER lives in Dade County, Fla., where they recently voted to deny homosexuals their constitutional rights because of Anita Bryant's crusade to "Save Our Children." I'd appreciate your comment.

STRAIGHT AND CONCERNED

DEAR S AND C: No straight boy ever became gay because he took ballet lessons. Neither did a gay become straight because he joined the Marine Corps. No one knows what causes some people to be gay and others to be straight. But it's a fact that "our children" do not need to be "saved" from homosexuals. (More children are molested by straights than by gays.)

To use "God," "the American flag" and the emotionally charged cry to "Save Our Children" in an effort to deny employment, housing and public accommodations to a whole segment of our population because of their personal sexual preference is outrageous!

DEAR ABBY: I was shocked when I read the letter in your column from the mother who was reluctant to allow her son to take ballet lessons because it might encourage him to become a homosexual. How ignorant can some people be?

I have three sons. The two older boys excelled in football, but the younger boy favored ice skating and ballet. I made sure the two older boys did not ridicule their younger brother because of his interest in ballet.

As for ballet being for sissies, I'd like to see a sissy lift a 130-pound ballerina with one hand and hold her over his head. And all those strenuous leaps, turns and jumps take muscle control, coordination and strength the finest athlete would envy.

Ballet does more for a boy's body than football. I'd rather see my son dance than see him carried off a football field on a stretcher with a broken nose or a broken leg!

POMONA MOM

DEAR ABBY: Would you believe that before my son became a Golden Glove boxing champion he was advised to take ballet lessons to improve his footwork? He took them, too. And when he was kidded about it, he laughed harder than anybody because he knew that he was as much a man as the manliest.

CHAMP'S MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: BUDDY'S MOTHER should realize how much masculinity and discipline goes into becoming a professional ballet dancer. He must be as fit as an Olympic champion and possess the grace and rhythm of an artist. I think that any boy who is fortunate enough to show signs of talent in the dance should be encouraged in it and not made to feel guilty or lacking in manhood.

Carter sees hope for more nuclear curbs

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHOW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says there is now "a glimmer of hope" that the spread of atomic weapons can be limited, even though "every step is going to be a challenge in itself."

"Six or eight months ago there was a general feeling around the world that nothing could be done, that it was too late, that the atomic genie was out of the bottle and that nobody could catch it to return it to captivity," the President said.

"But I believe there is a different feeling now, that there is a glimmer of hope that the proliferation of nations who have an explosive atomic device can be limited. Instead of having dozens of atomic nations, I think the likelihood is we won't have very many more."

Carter also said in an interview that "I don't know of any nation" which disagrees with his goal of total and orderly nuclear disarmament.

The President said that the United States has "instituted a very strong program based on two simple principles: one is an adequate supply of nuclear fuel to be used for the production of power; the other one ... is strict control over nuclear wastes and the enriched uranium inventory to prevent a transfer into explosives."

Carter said he has received some Soviet and Chinese backing for his goals of stopping the spread of nuclear weapons and, ultimately, eliminating them entirely. But he also said he hopes for even more cooperation from the two Communist giants.

He said the Soviet Union "has been very forthcoming so far" in support of proposals to control the use and development of nuclear fuels, tools and knowhow.

He said he was disappointed by Moscow's rejection of a proposal for "a drastic reduction in atomic weaponry," but added, "It is still a very real goal for my administration."

Carter said the Chinese leaders shared his goal of total nuclear disarmament. He said he had discussed Peking's views with Ambassador Huang Chen, chief of China's liaison mission in Washington.

The Chinese, Carter said, have a three-part approach to the issue: first, a world summit to discuss the subject; second, a pledge by nuclear nations against first-use of their weapons; and third, the total elimination of nuclear weapons.

"I think it is a good idea, a good approach," he said. "The first step obviously is to derive some agreement between ourselves and the Soviet Union." Carter said other nations "would be influenced heavily by what we do. We are prepared today to stop all testing of nuclear devices, both weapons and peaceful nuclear devices, if the Soviets will agree."

"I think we together are making some good progress on that subject. I think we will have a move toward the constraint on testing. Whether it is absolute, I don't know, but we would be willing, for a limited period of time, to stop all testing, hoping that the other nuclear nations would join us after they see how well the prohibition works between us and the Soviet Union."

Discussing other aspects of nuclear policy in the Oval Office interview, Carter said:

—His administration has not foreclosed the hope or possibility of terminating the contracts West Germany and France have signed to sell nuclear-reprocessing plants to Brazil and Pakistan, giving these countries the capacity to extract plutonium from waste uranium fuel. (Plutonium, a man-made element, can be used for making bombs.)

—He favors greatly strengthening the Vienna-based International Atomic Energy Agency as a permanent world organ for nuclear supervision and control.

—He would go along with arrangements for swapping data with other nations on America's uranium inventories and mining extraction rates. But he ruled out any suggestion that there should be international ownership or control of U.S. uranium mines.

—He thinks that besides the five acknowledged nuclear weapons powers — the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and China — "there are some others that are not known." He did not name any country.

—He took issue with some scientists who have contested U.S. government figures on the supply of uranium and have suggested that there may be a shortage within the next 10 to 15 years. "Nobody has a sure set of data," he said, but added: "I think we are overestimating the demand for nuclear fuels." He also said there "has never been an adequate worldwide inventory of uranium fuels." Carter added: "I think that a good estimate of demand will help. I think when we compare that with a fairly well-assured supply that we will have no shortage of uranium fuel in the next 15 or 20 years."

"At that time, of course, some form of advanced reactor technology will be necessary ... I think we can be prepared to use it safely by then."

The President, who did graduate work in nuclear physics and, while in the Navy, worked on the development of atomic submarines, said he had never witnessed a nuclear test shot. He said that while in the Navy in the early 1950s "we went through months of indoctrination on the scope of anticipated damage" from a nuclear blast. "The very clear conclusion is that once an atomic device is exploded in an area, there is no practical way to minimize the damage."

Echoing a theme he sounded through the interview, Carter said: "I think that world opinion is on the side of restraining a nuclear explosive capacity among the non-nuclear nations. Although some nations have a reluctance to be restrained, I think world opinion is still a growing factor."

Korean pullout talks ended

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown today ended talks with South Korean officials on the U.S. troop withdrawal plan, pledging continued military support and reassuring Seoul that the United States will not negotiate with North Korea behind its back.

A communique issued at the conclusion of two days of talks said the two sides had agreed on formation of a combined military command. It also described in general terms the planned phased pullout of 33,000 U.S. ground troops, and said the Carter administration would ask Congress to approve a new military aid program for South Korea.

Brown and his 11-member delegation then left for Tokyo to brief Japanese officials on the talks.

The communique said Brown and South Korean Defense Minister Suh Jyong-chul noted that Communist North Korea has strengthened itself militarily in recent years and that "the North Korean threat remains serious."

"It is essential to maintain and strengthen the defense capabilities of the Republic of Korea, at a state of readiness sufficient to deter a renewal of hostilities on the Korea peninsula," the communique said.

It then went on to list, without specifying the cost, the elements of the proposed military aid program — the transfer of U.S. military equipment, an increase in military sales credits for Seoul and continued support for "general Korean force improvement."

A senior American official has said the aid program will amount to $1.9 billion over four years. The U.S. withdrawal, a pullout of virtually all American ground troops, is expected to take four or five years.

The communique also said Brown reaffirmed that the United States "would not enter any negotiations on the future of Korea with North Korea without the participation of the Republic of Korea."

This was an apparent effort to ease South Korean fears that the United States, as it did in the case of China and Taiwan, might suddenly open a bilateral dialogue with North Korea, bypassing Seoul.

The communique said the first group of 6,000 U.S. soldiers will be withdrawn by the end of 1978, and the remaining troops will be "carefully" phased out after that.

The headquarters and two brigades of the 2nd Infantry Division, the principal Army unit here, will remain in Korea until the final phase of the withdrawal, it said.

The communique said both sides agreed that "compensatory measures will be implemented in advance or in parallel with the withdrawals."

Brown's talks with Suh and South Korean President Park Chung-hee were marked by repeated reassurances — including one in a letter from President Carter to Park — that the United States would honor its treaty commitment to defend South Korea.

"So long as an American security commitment exists, no one should have any doubt about our intention of honoring it," Brown said at a news conference before departing for Tokyo.

Chillicothe probe brings harassment

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Evelyn Marshall, a registered nurse at the Veterans Administration Hospital here, has asked for a medical leave of absence. She says her job makes her sick.

The 35-year-old Columbus mother of two has been the target of a threatening anonymous letter and apparent car tampering since she talked to federal investigators at the facility for nearly 1,000 patients.

She said her doctor has diagnosed a gastric ulcer condition.

"I'm not going back there," she said Monday. "I get physically sick when I think about it."

The hospital is under federal investigation prompted by petitions circulated by about 189 of the facility's 1,350 employees. Mrs. Marshall said she was told by an unidentified nurse's aide that if she met with the audit team from the Veterans' Administration Hospital "You're going to get harassed after they leave."

The message in the letter was pasted on the sheet of paper in three uneven lines: "...initiation is just beginning...night duty should be good experience...but dangerous."

Mrs. Marshall received the letter a few days before she was transferred to night duty in May.

As she was driving back to Columbus on July 15, the brakes in her three-month-old car started to make "a grating noise which kept getting louder and louder."

A mechanic at the Circleville dealership where she bought the 1977 Plymouth found a three-foot piece of surgical gauze wrapped around the brakes and suspension. It forced the brakes on the driver's side to lock.

The mechanic said that meant if she were in close traffic, a sudden stop could lock up the brakes.

The brake tampering incident happened a few days after she met with a member of the audit team from the Washington headquarters which has been investigating the hospital since July 5.

Mrs. Marshall began work in Chillicothe in April, having previously worked in a Tampa, Fla. veterans hospital.

Lyndon teenager injured in fight

A Lyndon teenager was injured in a scuffle at the Fayette County Fairgrounds Monday night, according to Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

Sixteen-year-old Jim Landrum of Lyndon suffered injuries to his eye and right hand. The youth was taken to the Fayette County Memorial Hospital's emergency room where he was treated.

According to sheriff's deputies, Landrum was leaving the fairgrounds around 11:45 p.m. when another youth began calling him names and arguing with him. The argument became heated and a fight ensued.

Landrum was told to return to the hospital for a further check of his injuries Tuesday, the sheriff's department report stated.

Nursing home faces payback

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Cincinnati nursing home may have to pay the state back $84,477 in welfare payments because of errors made by the state Welfare Department, Auditor Thomas Ferguson reported Monday.

The Summit Nursing and Convalescent Home Inc. was receiving $28.29 a day in state aid for welfare clients which was $7.25 a day more than allowable, Ferguson said.

"While part of the overpayment can be attributed to the nursing home's mistakes in its cost report, I believe the Welfare Department was guilty of gross negligence in setting the payment rate," Ferguson, a Democrat, said the day of the Republican-run department.

CAPE GRANNY SMITH Apples bring new interest to desserts.

Cape Granny Smith apples enhance desserts naturally

Perk up a favorite sweet and creamy dessert with a surprise ingredient that's both crisp and tangy. Cape Granny Smith Apples, with their sweet-tart taste add snappy texture and flavor interest to a traditional pudding and fruit and cream combination.

This robust fruit is quite unlike any other apple. It's a green variety that's best eaten raw, either whole as a refreshing snack or cut up into a main or side dish or dessert.

Cape Granny Smith Apples make dishes more nutritious, too. They're a good source of pectin and fiber and provide other essential nutrients including vitamin A, thiamin, riboflavin, potassium, iron and phosphorus.

Try this top-quality fruit in colorful Granny's Rice Pudding Parfait, an up-to-date version of an old-fashioned favorite. The delicate rice pudding, prepared in a double-boiler instead of an oven, is chilled, then layered with diced apples, for a lovely ribboned effect, in parfait glasses or dessert dishes.

Apple Blossoms with Sicilian Cream is an adaptation of two traditional Italian desserts — cannoli, a pastry filled with a rich, chocolate-flecked cream, and fruit and cheese.

A blend of sweetened cream cheese, grated walnuts and finely grated chocolate is lightly laced with cognac or orange juice to make a velvety dip for crisp wedges of Cape Granny Smith Apples.

These Apple Blossoms are prepared by cutting cored apples into equal-size wedges while keeping the bottoms intact. Remove slivers from the sides of the wedges for an open-flower effect that's pretty and practical, too.

You can also serve these flowers with Granny Smith's Apply Honey Whip. This fluffy whipped-cream dessert, naturally sweetened with honey, has a subtle snap of ginger that goes well with the semi-tart apples for a wholesome, yet extra-special, family fare.

Cape Granny Smith Apples, grown in the Elgin Valley of South Africa, are available in U.S. and Canadian supermarkets from early May through August.

An employee of the Fayette County Board of Education reported to Fayette County sheriff's deputies that six windows were broken by vandals at the Jeffersonville Elementary School Monday afternoon.

The employee, James McDonald of Jeffersonville told sheriff's deputies that six windows on the ground level on the west, south and east sides of the school building were broken between 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. One of them, he stated, was broken by a bicycle wheel. No estimate of the damage was reported.

Washington C.H. police officers reported five gallons of basement water-proofing was poured over a large amount of building materials at a construction site on High Street sometime between Sunday afternoon and Monday morning.

AF academy 'took adjusting'

CINCINNATI (AP) — Bonnie Houchen has weathered her first year at the Air Force Academy and she admits that she didn't always feel welcome as the academy opened its doors to women for the first time.

"It took a lot of adjusting for them," said Miss Houchen, who is home visiting her family after completing her first year at the school located in Colorado Springs, Colo. "Some hold grudges but they more or less keep to themselves. It's going to take a long time before this change is accepted."

Her first year was a real challenge since she was among the first class of women who attended the service academies, but she concluded "I guess every year will be a challenge for our class because ours is the first class of women."

"We are trying to prove we can do whatever they (the men) can do. So far we have."

She completed three weeks of survival training at a national park just prior to coming home.

"The girls came through beautifully," she reported.

There hasn't been too much time to worry about problems.

Classes run from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on weekdays. After class, they are expected to participate in intramural programs ranging from basketball to rugby. Although weekends are more or less free, superiors sometimes schedule military training.

Tina-Marie D'Ercole, of Hamilton, Ohio, has encountered similar circumstances during her first year at the Naval Academy.

The academic schedule for the midshipmen is 18-20 hours a week.

"I don't have a minute to sit except, maybe Sunday," she said. "The year went by fast. I didn't have time to get homesick."

The plebe class of which she was a member was at the bottom of the caste system at Annapolis.

"With each obstacle we overcame, we felt we had really accomplished something," said Miss D'Ercole, who wants to become a pilot after she graduates.

Men and women in the plebe class endure the same hardships, she explains. Because of his men and women become close friends.

She admitted there were cadets who did not like the idea of having women at Annapolis, but she claimed her experiences with such persons have not been severe.

In fact, she called this year the best of her life.

Officers investigate two minor accidents

Washington C.H. police officers reported two minor traffic accidents that occurred Monday night.

A California man was cited by police officers for failure to drive on the right half of the roadway following a two-car collision around 11:20 p.m. on W. Court Street near Circle Avenue.

James A. Fortelny, 27, of Norwalk, Calif., turned right onto W. Court Street from the Rendezvous Room Restaurant parking lot, 331 W. Court St., and struck an eastbound car in the center lane, according to a police department report. Neither Fortelny nor Deborah A. Butcher, 18, of Bloomingburg, the driver of the other car, were injured. A plate glass window was broken at the Union 76 service station, 1204 Columbus Ave., when a vehicle slipped into reverse and rolled into it about 8:53 p.m. according to police officers.

Thirty-three-year-old Ronald L. Kearns of 678 Robinson Road had stopped at the service station because his car's engine had overheated, the police department report stated. The gear selector slipped into reverse after he stepped out of the vehicle and rolled into the window. The car also slightly damaged the building wall.

Radio taken from truck

Theft report probed

A citizen's band radio was stolen from a pick-up truck in the Greenfield area sometime Sunday night, according to Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

Jerry Wing parked his truck in front of his home at 316 Zimmerman Road near Greenfield about 7 p.m. Sunday, according to the sheriff's department report, and discovered, around 6:30 a.m. Monday, that his $159 citizen's band radio had been stolen.

In another theft incident reported by Fayette County sheriff's deputies, a portable AM-FM radio was stolen Monday night from two boys at the Miami Trace High School.

Layton Shoemaker of 325 Bloomingburg-New Holland Road told investigating sheriff's deputies his sons and a friend had been playing tennis at the school and had left the radio laying on the ground near the courts between 8 p.m. and 8:20 p.m. When they returned, the sheriff's department report stated, the $30 radio was gone.

Pat Denen, 721 Columbus Ave., reported to Washington C.H. police officers that someone stole the center cap on a "mag" wheel of his 1977 model Ford between 10 and 11 Sunday morning. The cap was valued at $6.

Employee at local plant abducted at knifepoint

WILMINGTON, Ohio — A Wilmington woman was forced off the road and held at knifepoint before being released by her abductor early Monday, according to Greene County sheriff's deputies.

Mrs. Sherry Waddell, of Wilmington, was driving home at 11:45 p.m. Sunday from the Thatcher Plastics Co. in the Washington C.H. Industrial Park, when a car following her forced her to pull off the side of the road, sheriff's deputies reported.

Mrs. Waddell was then forced by knifepoint out of her car and was driven to Xenia, Dayton, Fairborn and Beavercreek before she convinced her abductor to take her home. She arrived home at 3:30 a.m. Monday, according to deputies.

The woman is apparently a friend of the suspect's estranged wife and was kidnapped for the purpose of obtaining information, authorities said. At one point, she told investigating officers, she was threatened with her life if she did not tell the suspect what he wanted to know.

Charges of kidnaping were filed by Mrs. Waddell with the Greene County Sheriff's Department Monday against Louis Ellinger, of Xenia.

Ellinger was apprehended at 1:30 p.m. Monday and released on a $7,500 bond.

Business news

Utility company notes drop in second quarter earnings

DAYTON Ohio — Describing as "disappointing" a Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) decision on a Dayton Power and Light Co. request for increased revenues, board chairman Robert B. Killen also reported a drop in second quarter earnings.

Earnings for the three months ended June 30, 1977 declined to 31 cents from 38 cents for the same period last year.

"The same inflation that has swollen household budgets over the last several years continues to take its toll at DP&L," explained Killen. "We're doing our level best to hold the line on costs and to use the most efficient management techniques, but we're vulnerable to increasing costs like everyone else."

"The PUCO decision is a blow to all DP&L consumers," said Killen, adding:

"After a round of unbelievable cost increases for everything from copper wire to utility poles, as well as the devastating winter of 1976-1977, it's obvious that the Dayton area needs energy to fuel its economy."

Without reasonable rates, the job cannot be done for the consumers of this area, he said.

"We need to take steps today to make sure consumers in Dayton have power when they flip the switch tomorrow," Killen said.

"That means we must build power plants, transmission facilities and everything else that goes into bringing energy to people."

"We need only to look at the events of last week in New York as well as the gas shortage of last winter to see what an inadequate energy supply can mean to a community."

"If the hot weather of last week hasn't convinced everybody that we need power, then nothing will," he added.

Killen said the PUCO order will make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, to finance and build the power generating facilities people here need. In addition we're trying to drill gas wells, invest in gas storage and take other steps to increase gas supply.

"In an area that wants to make opportunities available for young people and jobs for workers today, an adequate supply of energy is essential."

Company executives are meeting now to determine what to do about the PUCO order. "We'll certainly make some type of appeal to the Commission to consider the plight of consumers in this area," he said.

The PUCO granted $567,000 out of a modified $26 million electric rate increase request, granted $6.2 million out of a $14 million gas increase request, and $1.10 million of a $1.25 million steam request.

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Television Writer
BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF. (AP) — The sunny patio of the Polo Lounge, where tanned stars and moguls do charisma exercises, seemed an odd place to discuss a musty tomb and the legend of a mummy's curse. But it's where England's Lord Carnarvon discussed reports that Egypt's late King Tutankhamen got angry at m'Lord's father for helping unseal the king's 3,000-year-old tomb in 1922.
Now, NBC has a Wednesday special, "Tut: The Boy King," about Tut, his treasures and the legend that he got so mad at Lord Carnarvon's father he caused the man's death shortly after the grand opening.
"Speak up because I'm rather deaf — you will be when you're 79," said m'Lord, a wonderfully irascible man, when asked about mysterious circumstances of his father's death.
"It wasn't mysterious. I'll tell you all about it."
He said his father, who financed archeologist Howard Carter's search for Tut's tomb, cut himself while shaving one morning in Egypt in mid-March 1923, well after the tomb-opening.
He dabbed iodine on the cut, had lunch with Carter, "and in the afternoon they go and fiddle about in the tomb," said the son, a retired British army colonel who isn't seen in NBC's show.
The father felt ill, was whisked back to Cairo, doctors were summoned and a diagnosis of blood poisoning rendered.
"Remember, in those days, there were no antibiotics, no penicillin, no anything, right?" he said. "So, at that stage, there was no great panic." But his father's condition worsened.

So, he said, his mother and the family doctor were rushed by rickety biplane from London and he was summoned from India, where he was serving with a cavalry unit, the 7th Hussars.
He immediately embarked by train for Bombay and boarded an ancient ship bound for England by way of Suez.
He said when he got to Cairo, his father "looked appalling, blood-shot eyes, pulse beating at his throat, unshaved and obviously in extremis."
Still, they managed a brief chat. Then he retired to bed. He said his father died at about five minutes before 2 a.m. that night, April 5, 1923. After which all the lights in Cairo mysteriously went out.
The next day, he said, Carter translated for him the claim of a leading Cairo newspaper: "King Tut was very cross indeed with the infidel called Carnarvon when he disturbed his mortal remains. And the king decreed he should be punished by being rendered ill and subsequently die."
"And so as to finally mark his displeasure, he caused all the lights in Cairo to go out at the moment of his (the lord's) death."
The old soldier said Cairo power experts couldn't explain the power failure. As for himself, he neither believes nor disbelieves King Tut was the kilowatt culprit. He just doesn't know.
Does he think Tut's ire killed his father?
"Of course I don't," he said.

In 4-H safety speaking contest

Two youths represent Fayette County

Nineteen 4-H'ers representing 10 counties in south central Ohio gathered recently at the area extension center in Washington C.H. to participate in the annual area 4-H safety speaking contest.

Cheryl Blue, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Marcy, Cook-Yankee Road, near Mount Sterling, represented Fayette County and presented a speech entitled, "Panic: The Hikers Deadly Enemy".

Also representing the county was Jay Johnson, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Johnson U.S. 62-NE, speaking on "If It Happened to You What Would You Do?"

The annual 4-H speak up for safety contest is sponsored jointly by the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service of Ohio State University and Westfield Companies of Westfield Center, Ohio. Each participant and guest received a fine lunch, and each contestant received a 4-H trophy and certificate on behalf of the sponsor. This is the 30th year that Westfield Companies has co-sponsored the contest.

Named as the area winner to represent the Washington C.H. Extension Center at the state contest was Coletta Heyob of Highland County and alternate Cheryl Blue of Fayette County.

For the boys, Bob Kile of Madison County will represent the Washington C.H. area and Mark Kennedy of Brown County was selected as alternate.

As area winners, Coletta and Bob will represent the Washington C.H.

Cheryl Blue and Jay Johnson

Extension Area in the state 4-H speak up for safety contest. They will compete against nine other boy and girl area winners on Monday, August 22, at 1 p.m. in the Ohio Highway Patrol academy auditorium on the Ohio State Fairgrounds. Winners in the event will receive a trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Ill., later this year.

Men said worst union obstacle

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Women seeking positions of union leadership apparently believe men are their main obstacle, according to an Indiana University study.

Most of the 61 females surveyed as part of a study for a year-long project designed to upgrade the skills and potential of Indiana's women union members said "men" in answer to a question about their problems.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare is funding two 18-week leadership training courses for 60 union women at IU campuses in Gary and South Bend.

Leesburg, Highland County, was settled by Quakers and named for the Lee family of Virginia. Giant earth-moving machines manufactured in Marion, Ohio, helped dig the Panama Canal and Boulder Dam. Such huge shovels are still manufactured there.—AP

Cards back Cincy into a Hoerner

Reds drop seventh straight

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

It was a day of good news and bad news for Sparky Anderson.

He got the good news in the afternoon Monday when the management of the Cincinnati Reds extended his contract for two years. He got the bad news Monday night when his team's losing streak was extended to seven games.

"There's no question the contract felt good, but we've simply got to win more games," said Anderson, shaking his head after a 9-8 nationally televised defeat by the Cardinals.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs beat the Houston Astros 9-7; the Pittsburgh Pirates tripped the Atlanta Braves 6-3; the Philadelphia Phillies turned back the San Diego Padres 6-4 in 12 innings; the New York Mets edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0 and the Montreal Expos nipped the San Francisco Giants 4-3.

Jerry Mumphrey and Garry Templeton delivered run-scoring singles in the sixth to snap a 4-4 tie and Ted Simmons later pounded his 15th home run to supply power for the Cardinals' victory.

The Cards withstood an assault by Cincinnati hitters that included two home runs by George Foster and one each by Johnny Bench and Bob Bailey, in addition to Pete Rose's record 2881st career hit as a switch-hitter.

Cubs 9, Astros 7
Larry Bittner's two-run homer in the bottom of the eighth gave Chicago a comeback victory over Houston. After the Astros tied it at 7-7 with a seven-run outburst in the eighth, George Mitterwald walked to open the bottom of the eighth for Chicago. Two outs later, Bittner stroked his eighth homer of the season off loser Mark Lemongello.

Pirates 6, Braves 3
Bill Robinson's three-run homer in the eighth inning lifted Pittsburgh over Atlanta behind Jerry Reuss' five-hitter. The Pirates scored two runs in the seventh to tie the score after being down 3-1, then won it on Robinson's dramatic homer.

Phillies 6, Padres 4

Garry Maddox' two-out triple in the 12th snapped a 4-4 tie and sparked Philadelphia over San Diego.

Reliever Dan Spillner struck out Mike Schmidt and Greg Luzinski to open the 12th. But Richie Hebner singled to right and Maddox followed with a triple down the right field line to score the winning run. Maddox scored an insurance run on Tug McGraw's single.

McGraw, 4-1, pitched the final four innings to gain the victory.

Especially for sellers of mud

Baseball's a dirty business

CINCINNATI (AP) — Psst. There's a dirty business operating in Willingboro, N.J. Major league baseball has been knee deep in it for more than 30 years.

Every commissioner from Kenesaw Mountain Landis to Bowie Kuhn has pumped funds into this filthy outfit.

It involves...well, it involves mud. Not just any old mud. This is a special kind, supposedly found only in Willingboro.

Umpires rub the dirt on five dozen baseballs before each major league game to help pitchers get a better grip on the ball.

"They've been using it since before I got here and that was in the 1950s," said Fred Fleig, National League secretary-treasurer in charge of the umpires.

"Before they would just go out to a nearby river, say the Ohio, for the mud," said Fleig. "Then a fella by the name of Lena Blackburne (a former Cincinnati Reds infielder and Chicago White Sox manager) said he had a new type of mud that worked well on the ball."

"Well, the National League liked it and had him send two coffee cans of it to every ballpark."

Blackburne became ill in 1968. The future of his business was in jeopardy since no one knew where or how his mud was processed. So he came clean about baseball's dirtiest secret to John Haas, a lifelong friend.

Blackburne would have been proud of his old crony. Haas has kept the mud business a clandestine operation ever since. Well, almost.

At 84, Haas has found the trips to the lake for the mud much tougher each year. So he's taken into confidence his daughter, Mrs. Betty Bintliff, and her family of Willingboro.

Mrs. Bintliff said the mud is gathered each fall before the first freeze by her husband and five sons from a tributary on their property. It's brought back to a garage for a winterlong process.

Eventually, the mud is packed in coffee cans and marked Lena Blackburne Rubbing Mud.

The American League, American Association and International League as well as the NL specify annual delivery dates and spring training sites.

"I heard we get $100 a can," said a laughing Mrs. Bintliff. "I wish we did. Actually, it's around $15 a can and that varies, depending on postage rates."

Mrs. Bintliff envisions the Blackburne's dirt process as a possible family tradition.

"I think we'll be doing it as long as they (baseball leagues) request it. The time will come when our grandsons will take it if they want it," she said.

And if they refuse it — unlikely since the business is dirt cheap — there are plenty of people around who would. The Bintliffs know it. Haas knows it. They guard their property.

Mets 1, Dodgers 0

Craig Swan fired a three-hitter for his first shutout of the season and Steve Henderson doubled home the winning run as New York defeated Los Angeles.

First-inning singles by Lenny Randle and Felix Millan and then Henderson's bloop double to right produced the game's only run and Swan, 6-6, made the lead stand up.

Expos 4, Giants 3

Del Unser and Ellis Valentine belted homers, and four Montreal pitchers collaborated on a seven-hitter to carry Montreal over San Francisco.

Steve Rogers, 11-8, Joe Kerrigan, Will McEnaney and Bill Atkinson combined to pitch the Expos to their seventh victory in nine starts.

White Sox rally for 8-7 Boston win

By BOB GREENE

AP Sports Writer

To win at Boston's Fenway Park, "You have to be lucky," according to Chicago White Sox Manager Bob Lemon.

"We were hitting the ball well but right at somebody."

That was just for the first part of Monday night's game.

"I thought we were unlucky for about the first six innings," said Lemon after his White Sox rallied from a 6-1 deficit with a home run barrage and defeated the Red Sox, 8-7.

"We came out in the end swinging like a fighter," Lemon said. "It's been like this all year."

Eric Soderholm, Jim Spencer and Brian Downing hit homers, and two more drives might have gone for extra bases but for two stellar plays by Boston center fielder Fred Lynn.

While Lynn was practicing his magic in the outfield during the rain-delayed contest, Luis Tiant was baffling the White Sox with his assortment of off-speed pitches.

Then the roof fell in. Soderholm, robbed twice by Lynn's catches on drives to the base of the center field wall, cracked a 3-2 pitch for his third homer in two days. Tiant was relieved by ace reliever Bill Campbell, but the White Sox weren't through.

Spencer capped a four-run eighth inning with a three-run shot that tied the score, and Downing slammed only his second homer of the season in the ninth inning to win the game.

In other AL games Monday, Minnesota edged Oakland 2-1 in 11 innings, Baltimore nipped Milwaukee 4-3 in 11 innings, Texas defeated Cleveland 6-4, Detroit clobbered Toronto 8-3 and California downed Seattle 7-2. Kansas City at New York was rained out.

Post 25 still alive, kicking

Post 25 is still alive and kicking in the Chillicothe District Tournament, despite having most of their players gone from the start of the year.

After beginning the season with an abundance of personnel Legion manager Ron Helmick does not have the luxury of resting his team as only 11 members remain on the squad.

After losing the first game of the tourney to Hillsboro, Washington C.H. has come back to beat Bainbridge and Circleville to become one of the three final teams in the tournament.

Tonight at 8 p.m., the Legionnaires will play Portsmouth for the right to go into the finals against Chillicothe Post 757.

Court House and Portsmouth each have one loss while Post 757 is undefeated in tournament action.

Babe Ruth season ends with tourney

By DALE LYNCH

Babe Ruth Commissioner

The 1977 Babe Ruth baseball season came to an end last Sunday evening with the "Out-of-Town" All-Stars being nipped by the "In-Town" All-Stars, three games to two in a best of five tournament.

All five games were close and well played as the scores indicate. The first game was won by the Out-of-Towners, 7-6. The In-Towners came back to win the second game, 4-1.

The Out-of-Towners came back to win the third game by a 6-4 score before the In-Town stars tied the series again with a 8-7 win. The final game, typical of the tournament, was hard-fought until the In-Towners got three runs in the sixth inning to break a 1-1 tie.

All of the 40 players who participated in the tournament gave those fans who came to watch a lot of thrills and great baseball. Tim Hendricks was chosen as the most valuable player of the Out-of-Town team and Mike Eddleman won MVP honors on the In-Town team.

The Out-of-Town team was coached by Jim Perrill and Roger Snyder while the In-Town team was guided by Lenny Bach and John Faris.

In other action, the Top Flites beat the Daisies, 28-16 and the Tourneys beat the Titleists, 25-11.

The Tourneys are in third place with 48 points, a single point behind the Top Flites. The Daisies are fourth followed by the Titleists and the Pro Staffs.

Second round action will continue next week.

Matty Alou set a club record for the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1969 by going to bat 698 times.

Cincy opera most happy with show

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Opera Company has put the emphasis on an old favorite "The Most Happy Fella," and that's where the company's general manager feels it belongs.

Although the show has all the flash of a musical comedy with its show-stopping tunes such as "Big D" and "Standing on the Corner," it still was written following operatic form, according to James de Blasis.

However, he noted that as the production evolved toward its Broadway opening in 1956, some of the operatic construction was stripped out in favor of dialogue.

"I consider this to be an opera in the American tradition of Porgy and Bess," de Blasis said. "I think Frank Loesser started out to write an American opera and I think he's done it."

Although it still is performed in summer stock, Cincinnati Opera Company recently became the first American opera company to present "The Most Happy Fella" and its general director is enthused about the results.

He claims other opera companies have expressed interest in reviving the show, he has already begun discussion about possible future performances, and he talks about the still-remote possibility of bringing the show back to Broadway.

The show made its name on Broadway where it ran for 636 performances and was selected by the New York Drama Critics as best musical of the year in 1956-57.

The flood-control program in the Miami Valley was completed in 1922 at a cost of $32 million.—AP

Tuberculosis Not Hereditary Disease

My doctor gave me a real shock. He said I have tuberculosis. I remember that my grandfather died of tuberculosis, also my father was treated for it and was cured. Is tuberculosis inherited? Could my heavy smoking be responsible? — Mr. G.B.R., Iowa

Dear Mr. R.: Tuberculosis is not a hereditary disease. Nor is there any family tendency to it. The reason that tuberculosis of the lung is mistakenly believed to be an inherited condition is that it may occur in one or more of the same family who live in close quarters.

Tuberculosis is caused by bacteria. And these can be passed, contagiously, from one member of the family to another.

We have progressed enormously since the turn of the century when tuberculosis of the lungs was thought to be a "social disease." People were often ashamed to admit it existed in their families because it was so often associated with a low standard of living conditions. Poverty, malnutrition, poor hygiene, limited living space all played roles in the transmission of infection from one person to another.

During the past 25 years, there have been remarkable inroads into the early recognition, the treatment, the control and the cure of this serious disease.

Prolonged use of the antibiotics and other drugs now heals lung lesions and offers prolonged life to many who might otherwise have succumbed to the illness.

I am sorry that you have the condition, yet I am pleased that it has been recognized early so that intensive treatment can be started.

Your story gives me the opportunity to bring to the attention of my readers the fact that tuberculosis is not a wiped-out disease. It exists, and must be respected. Chronic coughs demand the earliest attention. Regular X-rays of the lungs should be made on anyone who has a suspicious cough.

Although your cigarette smoking may not have been a factor in producing the tuberculosis, the pollution, the tars, the nicotine that you have been inhaling undoubtedly have diminished the lung's resistance to infection.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	5 NT	Pass
7 NT

Opening lead - queen of clubs.

There is probably no convention more abused than Blackwood. Correctly used, the four and five notrump bids to learn how many aces and kings partner holds are extremely valuable. The difficulty arises when a player senses the possibility of making a slam and spontaneously trots out a four notrump bid. All too often this bid is a misdirected shot geared more to learning how many aces partner has than to learning how many tricks can be made.

It should be remembered that when a player uses Blackwood, his partner's judgment on whether or not to bid a slam is, in effect, wiped out. The responder is confined to showing how many aces he has. Other features of responder's hand, such as singletons, the presence or absence of strong intermediate cards, the nature of the trump support, and so on, get lost in the shuffle.

It is sometimes possible to override the rigid responses to Blackwood, as can be seen by the final action North took on this deal. South's four notrump bid was well based. With his unusually powerful diamonds, and values that looked slamish opposite an opening bid, he was more concerned with how many aces and kings North had than with how many points North had.

When North showed two aces by responding five hearts, a grand slam became feasible if North also had two kings. South therefore bid five notrump, asking about kings.

Five notrump in this sequence guarantees possession of all four aces and necessarily indicates interest in a grand slam. North, with eight solid winners he had not previously disclosed, ignored the query about kings and went all the way. He was afraid that a six diamond bid, showing one king, might be passed by South.

THE BETTER HALF.

Wallace P. Cash, APSA judged the photographs for this year's Fayette County Fair. Well, at least he was the official judge, and you'll get your chance to judge for yourself when you get to the fair. Young ladies walked off with both sweepstakes awards: Kathryn Smith taking the best-of-show in color slides with a burning building, and Dani Jo Mathison taking sweepstakes in prints with a color print of trees and reflections.

Tim Carson, Joe Giebelhouse, R. V. Swishelm and Howard Miller were all in there making the competition interesting. Tom Payton and Don Turner like to give the boys a rough time and they were in there again this year with some good pix. You see, most of these guys seem to zero in on Howard Miller as the guy they must beat because his work is always technically well done and he has imagination and good taste. It was Howard's oil rig slide that the Kathryn Smith fire slide had to beat for sweeps. The Smith slide had drama and impact and we're sure you'll agree with the judge when you see the exhibit.

For building purchase

Note issuance matter on Council's calendar

Washington C.H. City Council is apparently continuing with plans to issue a $250,000 note for the purchase and renovation of a new city office building.

An ordinance permitting issuance of such a note is on Wednesday's City Council meeting agenda. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Carnegie Public Library.

At Council's last regular session two weeks ago, a motion was passed authorizing City Manager George H. Shapter to investigate the issuance of a $250,000 note.

Presumably, $50,000 of the note will go for the actual purchasing of the building at 215 E. Market St., the former site of the Kirk's Auto Parts store. The remaining $200,000 will go for renovation and other costs.

An architect's estimation of the building's remodeling costs has been set at $190,000.

Council appears to be considering the sale of some city-owned property to help reduce the debt of the new city building.

During past meetings Council members have discussed the sale of surplus city land located at the end of N. Fayette Street and on Robinson Road.

No official action has been taken to sell the parcels, however.

Council agreed to purchase the Market Street building after months of searching for a suitable city office building site.

The 40-by-150 foot building was selected and the purchase price agreed upon in May. The deed to the building is scheduled to be turned over to the city before Sept. 1 and at that time the remodeling work can begin.

The Harder, Reed and Ruby Associates architectural firm of Worthington is handling the remodeling plans which call for a 60-seat auditorium for City Council, City Planning Commission, and Board of Zoning Appeals meetings.

Also included in the plans are offices for the city manager, the city inspector, the auditor, the deputy auditor, and the city income tax administrator. There will also be a computer room, a lounge and a large general work area.

The proposed building would greatly increase the city's office space as well as provide a meeting place for Council. The present city building, which is being leased, is much smaller and offers no meeting space for Council.

Only one other ordinance appears on Council's Wednesday agenda. It deals with amending a section of the city income tax law passed in 1976. The ordinance is scheduled to be placed on its third reading.

Municipal Court

After serving five days in the Fayette County jail for contempt of court, a New Holland man was found guilty of trespassing Friday by Judge John P. Case in the Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Frant Merritt, 44, of New Holland, was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 10 days in the county jail. At his first hearing on the charge July 11, Judge Case found Merritt in contempt of court and sentenced him to five days.

Merritt requested and was granted a continuance at a July 14 hearing so that he could hire an attorney. At Friday's hearing he was found guilty of the charge. Fayette County sheriff's deputies arrested Merritt July 9 on a complaint filed by his ex-wife.

In two other proceedings in Municipal Court Monday, Paul L. Leisure, 34, of 1420 Pearl St., signed a waiver on a charge of possession of marijuana and Thomas E. Wheeler, 1139 Gregg St., signed a waiver on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Arrested Sunday night by Washington C.H. police officers, Leisure paid a $40 fine, including court costs. Wheeler paid a fine plus court costs equalling $65. He was arrested by local police officers last Saturday.

Field work conditions excellent

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Here is the agricultural weather forecast for Ohio provided by the National Weather Service.

A cool Canadian high pressure area centered over Minnesota today will move into Ohio by Wednesday morning, providing cool weather for agriculture through Wednesday. Some warm up can be expected Thursday and a chance for showers Friday as fronts return.

FIELD OPERATIONS — Rain fell over much of Ohio Monday, but excellent drying today through Thursday will permit most all soil working activity. The plow layer in much of the state is still probably a little too dry to permit efficient plowing of oat and wheat stubble. Moisture consumption the next several days will be around 0.20 to 0.25 hundredths of an inch.

HAYING AND HARVESTING OUTLOOK — Breezy northerly winds will quickly dry straw and grain of oats remaining to be combined. Ideal combine conditions are likely this afternoon through Thursday. Afternoon humidity should generally be in the 40s and fairly rapid dissipation of moderate morning dew. Hay cut today or already down will have a good chance to be cured and harvested through Thursday. There is some risk of wetting Friday.

Cooler weather will slow the rapid pace of tobacco growth. This should permit a little more time to get the sucker control operation complete and also topping. Some of those barns will soon need to be readied for the earlier fields.

ADC fraud case to bring action

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The names of three Clark County residents who allegedly received more than $8,000 in Aid to Dependent Children payments while working in area schools have been turned over to the county prosecutor for possible legal action, the state Auditor said Monday.

Auditor Thomas Ferguson, who refused to name the individuals involved, said two were employees of the Springfield School District and one worked for the Clark County Technical Institute.

The allegedly illegal payments are appearing around the state as Ferguson's office computer cross-checks ADC roles and those of the state's School Employees' Retirement System.

Kurfess meets fairgoers

Gubernatorial candidate brings grassroots campaign to county

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

Kurfess, Kurfess, Kurfess, Kurfess. Charles F. Kurfess is trying to get his name known throughout Ohio for he is seeking the state's governorship in 1978.

The Ohio House of Representatives minority leader was in Washington C.H. Monday to meet people and inspect the Fayette County Fair. He was accompanied by 10 young Fayette Countians sporting tee-shirts with the name "Kurfess" printed four times on the front.

However, the 47-year-old Republican insists that he is not visiting various county fairs just to sell a guy named Kurfess.

"This gives us time to talk to people. We're hearing as much from them as they're hearing from us. It will make me a better governor," he said while sampling a piece of Fayette County apple pie Monday night.

Meeting people is not the only reason Kurfess is stumping the grassroots levels of Ohio. Although touring the county fair circuit and Republican Party activities is time consuming it is not overly expensive.

Kurfess claims that a lack of money is his biggest problem early in the campaigning.

"I don't have wealth myself," he said nothing that he lives on a farm outside Toledo. "We have no power base financially," he added pointing out that the Bowling Green area he represents in the Ohio House of Representatives is not Cincinnati, Columbus or Cleveland, the state's largest cities.

CHARLES F. KURFESS

Although Kurfess doesn't have a large financial backing, yet, he does have a reputation of being a good legislator. He is not an unknown in state or national political circles.

The former speaker of the Ohio House of Representatives was named the outstanding freshman representative by the State House Press Corps following his first term in 1956. He has since been named to the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations by two United States presidents. He has also headed the National Legislative Conference.

Kurfess first contemplated running for governor eight years ago, but he claims he would have been entering the campaign too late. This won't happen in 1978 when incumbent Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes' present four-year term nears its end.

"We are early," Kurfess said of his campaign which actually started four or five months ago when he began shaking hands in various Ohio cities.

With the state primary election still a year away, he is not outwardly concerned with any competition from Republican candidates, who, unlike himself, have not tossed their hats in the proverbial political ring.

His leading competitor at this time would appear to be the incumbent governor, but Kurfess is not certain Rhodes will seek re-election in 1978. Even if Rhodes does, it will not effect Kurfess' campaign plans, he said.

"My political plans are not contingent on his (Rhodes) running," he said, indicating that the 22-year veteran of the Ohio House wants the governorship in 1978, not in 1982 or 1986.

He has made his plans known to Gov. Rhodes personally.

"I went to Jim when I first started out, and told him of my plans. I wanted it to come from me, not from somebody else," Kurfess said.

Kurfess' past campaign record indicates that his search for the governorship is no idle dream.

In 1956, he challenged a longtime incumbent and won. He's been winning ever since. In fact, he has never lost a political race in his life.

Piketon plant deadline faced

WAVERLY, Ohio (AP) — State and local officials face an 18-month deadline to prepare for the initial construction at the Piketon centrifuge uranium enrichment plant.

That goal was the topic of a planning session Monday where officials discussed river and airports, completion of the Appalachian Highway and intensive job training.

The session, called by Gov. James A. Rhodes, brought more than 150 area officials and residents and about 30 department heads to this Pike County community in Southern Ohio.

Rhodes, David Weir, director of the Ohio Department of Transportation; and Rep. Vernal G. Riffe, Jr., D-89 New Boston, speaker of the Ohio House, all said completion of the federal Appalachian Highway was an important goal associated with construction of the massive $4.1 billion atomic fuel plant.

Another priority will be training potential workers for the plant. The centrifuge plant will have an expected peak employment level of more than 4,000 construction workers. Permanent jobs once the facility is in operation by the mid-1980s are expected to number 2,200 to 2,400.

"We fought for those jobs," said Robert Walton, chairman of the Ohio Valley Regional Development Commission (OVRDC), a five-county impact committee. "We've got to start training people for those jobs."

"They're not ERDA jobs, they're not Goodyear jobs, they're our jobs," Walton said.

Rhodes said a major goal of Monday's meeting was to be the coordination of the state departments with the various local planning committees. The governor made appointments to the committees from the audience and divided the group for planning sessions.

State officials attending the session included were Ned Williams, director of the Environmental Protection Agency; James Duerk, director of the Department of Economic and Community Development; Robert W. Teater, director of the Department of Natural Resources; Dr. John H. Ackerman, director of the Department of Health; and Albert Giles, director of the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services.

Local participants included representatives of Pike and Scioto counties, as well as police, health and planning agencies.

Rhodes added a committee group to study the possibility of a river port at Portsmouth and an expanded airport facility for the Piketon area.

Atom plant challenged

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Edison Co.'s proposed $2.6 billion Erie nuclear power plant is facing challenges in state and federal hearings as to its necessity and safety.

The plant, if the Ohio Power Siting Commission and the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission approve, is to be built near Lake Erie in Berlin Heights, west of Lorain. Its two nuclear reactors are scheduled for operation in 1986 and 1988.

Two environmental groups, the Ohio attorney general's office and an economist plan to question, at Power Siting hearings in mid-September and the Nuclear Regulatory hearings yet to be scheduled, the need for the plant, its cost, safety and environmental impact.
